So I just came back from this meeting for OK, and some very interesting things were said.

But, one thing that was really cool was the mention of this simulator that has the potential for determining best restoration practices. It reminds me of the stochastic simulator models we used in school for forcasting species survival/reproduction, etc. Just wanted to share and get your thoughts.

This weekend I drafted the attachment to use as talking points for this. Please try to stick to the messages in the attachment and try not to speculate about the timing or outcome of the petition finding.
